Principal's Message

Before...

...and after!

With every ending there comes a new beginning. As the 2008-2009 school year comes to a close, we are both excited and saddened. Though we share a fond farewell, we celebrate the next steps in our journey. The friends that helped us so far have become part of the fabric of our lives. Some will move on to other adventures, while a few will continue to share in our evolution as we design our future.

Look forward to new things to come, look back to enjoy what has shaped your thoughts and look inward to decide how you will face your future. Friendships, events and accomplishments build character, but it is our thoughts, values and actions that determine who we will become. Today we share fond memories of our time together and dream of new adventures.

The Terry Fox Run, Multi-Cultural Day and Royal Week are some of the more public reminiscences we have in common, but there are countless more private moments that we have shared with friends, family and staff. These are the thoughts that will bind us together for years to come. This book becomes the portal through which we revisit our past and reconsider our futures. We have contributed to the collective culture that is the Edith Rogers community. Use it well, and when you skim through these pages again, contemplate what you have gained from it. Ask good questions: Have the dreams you envisioned now come true as you would have hoped? What have you had to change to meet your goals? How have you adapted your actions or reshaped your expectations to align with what you are encountering? Have you become a person you can respect? How are you helping the world? What are your next steps? How well do your friends support your evolution? What price do you need to pay for your imaginings to come to fruition?

Thank you for a great year! You have made us a proud part of your past. Enjoy your future!

Mr. Cameron

EDITH ROGERS INSTRUCTIONAL FOCUS

A school-wide effort to have all Edith Rogers students show measurable growth in reading for meaning and understanding.

Valedictorian

Mr. Cameron, Mrs. Pichlyk, Teachers, Parents, and Fellow Students:

It is hard to believe that three years have already gone by. Do you remember grade seven? --- When most of us arrived, I dont think we were too comfortable being pushed into a new environment. A new school meant that we would get new teachers, meet new friends, and have to adapt to a new way of doing things. We would have to adjust to changing classrooms for each subject. We would have to learn to use those stupid combination locks. We would have to learn to navigate the cramped hallways and "traffic jams" we would encounter, especially at the intersections. --- Despite all of that, three years later, we all have some great memories to take with us that wouldnt have been possible without the amazing teachers, our families, and our peers.

Because of the pure dedication of all our teachers, we will be well-prepared for most of the challenges that lie ahead. A great deal of respect goes out to each and every teacher who put forth a constant effort everyday to help us understand the various things we needed to learn. Of course, we wont forget Mr. Hunts crazy stories that seemed nowhere near related to social class, but look a little deeper and find that it was connected to social in one way or another. Mrs. Oswins interesting L.A. classes is another thing we wont forget. Though some people may not have understood where the conversation was going, if you actually listened, you would have learned a valuable life lesson. Do you remember Ms. Newshams --- I mean Mama Mias--- wild Italian accent over the intercom? Thanks to Ms. Gordon and her Smartboard expertise, a good portion of the students learned a lot about that technology. More than most of the teachers! Well remember the sports tryouts, track meets, different clubs, spirit days, and all the friendships we had. Though some may fade over time, well have outstanding experiences to look back on. This night may very well be one of them.

Our families played an important role in getting us to where we are today. They supported us through hardships, encouraged us to reach our goals, and picked us up when we were down or tempted to give up. For this we must thank our families.

Throughout these years, we built many friendships that may last a lifetime. Our friends lifted our spirits when we were down, showed us love when we were lonely, and gave us hope when life seemed empty. A number of us may have to leave some of our greatest friends, but well have memorable experiences to take with us through high school, and every day after that.

What the future holds for some of us is a mystery. Others know exactly what they want after high school. Whatever our endeavours turn out to be, we must always remember that some part of Edith Rogers played a role in shaping our future.

Just remember, dont be upset because this is over. Smile because it happened, and you were able to be a part of it.

I wish all of you good luck in high school, and thank you for a wonderful experience here at Edith Rogers.
